This manual provides some case studies taken from the European Court of Human Rights’s (ECtHR) jurisprudence, related to the obligation to respect and to protect human rights, to non-discrimination and to the human rights of police officers. Depending on the objectives of your training course and your target group, you may wish to use other case studies than those presented in the manual. Here are some useful hints on how to design your own case study. ECtHR case law can serve as a basis for your case studies. It may also be useful to look at national case law. Police officers who ensure that people are able to exercise their fundamental rights and freedoms earn the respect and trust of the public. With this in mind, this manual by the European Union Agency for Fundamental Rights (FRA) sets out to foster such human rights-based police work by integrating human rights training into the heart of police training, in line with the European Union’s goals in the field of justice and home affairs. In so doing, the manual translates ‘high’ principles into specific practical exercises that facilitate police work, and supports police officers in internalising the concepts that drive human rights-based policing – helping to ensure that they are equipped to make the right choices in their daily work. The manual focuses on crucial police-related issues, such as diversity and non-discrimination, the absolute prohibition of torture, and also the human rights of police officers. Tried and tested with different police academies in the EU, the manual is intended as a practical tool for implementing fundamental rights-based policing in the EU. This manual is designed to assist police academies in integrating human rights into police training, rather than relegating such training to an optional add-on. It focuses in particular on those rights that help engender trust in the police working in diverse societies: nondiscrimination, dignity and life. It provides a practical, hands-on training tool for EU Member State institutions, drawing on the knowledge and evidence of the European Union Agency for Fundamental Rights’ (FRA) stakeholder engagement and research findings. The manual walks training participants step-by-step through the fundamental rights implications of real-life situations, providing them with the tools they need to analyse and deal with situations they may one day face themselves. The manual seeks to instil a view of fundamental rights as a tool to enhance police effectiveness and professionalism. Professional human rights-based police work is a key source of legitimacy for the police and enhances the effectiveness of policing. When police ensure that citizens are able to exercise their fundamental rights and freedoms, they are not only earning the respect and trust of the public but they are also maximising the effectiveness of their work. Thus, the manual’s overall aim is to aid in establishing a relationship of trust between police and societies in all their diversity.

Devoted primarily to illustrating basic officer survival techniques, this police training manual also outlines the elements of a basic training course and selected training issues, such as riot control and search and seizure. Divided into three sections, the text begins with a police department training program guide outlining the topics that must be covered in preparing an officer for the field. Police-community relations, field situation inquiries, and patrol pointers, methods and skills are suggested training topics, along with court appearances, water safety and rescue methods, the care and use of firearms, methods of unarmed self-defense, and the theory, methods, and techniques of traffic accident investigation. The second section deals with ongoing concerns and situations which the law enforcement officer must be prepared to confront daily. These range from such basic considerations as the Miranda requirements to such special concerns as riot control, bomb threats, searches and seizures, and dealing with drunks. The final and longest section illustrates and discusses basic self-defense tactics and exercises designed to better equip officers for survival in the field. Stressing the overriding importance of avoiding over-control and acts of brutality, the text makes substantial use of sequence photographs to demonstrate blocking and counterattack exercises, kicking techniques, free fighting tactics, and defenses against common types of suspect resistance or attack. Come-along holds, control holds for handcuffing suspects, and baton and strangulation techniques are also illustrated, as are defensive approaches to suspects in automobiles.
