The general mission of the United Methodist Church is to fulfill Jesus’ command to “go and make disciples of all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit, teaching them to observe all things that I have commanded you; and lo, I am with you always, to the close of the age.”

The mission of United Methodists is to make disciples of Jesus Christ for the transformation of the world. This mission is carried out through the work of the church, which is made up of local churches, annual conferences, and the General Church.

The General Church is composed of the General Conference, the General Council on Finance and Administration, the General Board on Ministry and Music, and the General Board on Higher Education and Ministry.

The General Conference is the governing body of the church, which meets every four years to set the agenda for the work of the church and to approve its budget. The General Council on Finance and Administration is responsible for all aspects of the church's financial operations. The General Board on Ministry and Music is responsible for the church's liturgy and music. The General Board on Higher Education and Ministry is responsible for the church's education and ministry initiatives.

The General Church is made up of annual conferences, which are regional bodies of the church that are responsible for the oversight of local churches in their area. The annual conferences are made up of local churches, which are the basic units of the church.

Local churches are made up of members who are committed to the mission of the church. Members are baptized into the church and are given the opportunity to live out their faith in their daily lives. Local churches are responsible for providing worship services, education opportunities, and outreach programs for their members.

The General Church also includes the United Methodist Women, a women's organization that provides opportunities for women to grow in their faith and serve the church.

The United Methodist Church is a global church that seeks to make disciples of Jesus Christ for the transformation of the world. This is accomplished through the work of the church at all levels, from local churches to the General Church.

The United Methodist Church has a rich history and has grown to be a major force in world Christianity. The church has a commitment to social justice and is involved in many social and political issues. The church has played a role in many social movements, including the civil rights movement, the peace movement, and the feminist movement.
